

PAME: Long live the struggle of France workers!

PAME expresses its solidarity with the working class of France for the new general strike of March 23 and the great daily mobilizations of the workers.

Workers, youth and people of France, with militant unions on the front line, flood the streets of every French city every day and carry out massive and militant strikes and multifaceted actions to prevent the passage of the Macron government's anti-pension worker reform. They say loud and clear that they will not accept to work until death.

Dear French colleagues, your struggle has already gone down in history. The enormous strike actions of the past period, your multifaceted and unwavering action in recent months, have once again demonstrated the enormous power of the working class and the organized and collective class struggle.

Your struggle has forced the Macron government to get rid of all its false facades and show the true anti-working class face of monopoly power. They legislate against the people, using a class legal arsenal. They ban demonstrations, threaten and intimidate militant trade unionists, intimidate the people who produce the wealth, to guarantee the profits of a minority of exploiters.

The EU, the governments and parties of all countries, whatever their colour, "progressive" or "conservative", servants of business groups, put forward the competitiveness, growth, profits of a few, and sacrifice the lives of peoples.

In Greece too, in recent weeks, two of the biggest strikes in recent years have taken place under the slogan "THEIR PROFIT OR OUR LIFE" against these same policies. This is the dilemma of all workers, in all countries. And your struggle provides a resounding answer: workers will not accept new sacrifices.

The employers' threats in France, intimidation, slander and repression against the major workers' mobilizations are further proof of the weakness of a power based on the exploitation of the greatest number.

Already, the collective and massive indiscipline of the unions in banning demonstrations has nullified the attempt to block struggles and mobilizations. With this major action, we can throw any anti-working class law in the trash and put forward the modern needs of the working class, for wage increases, lowering the retirement age, for a life worthy of the 21st century and not a return to the Middle Ages.

We are the class that produces wealth. We are the class that pulls society forward. And the struggles of French workers today are pulling the entire working class forward. The working class of Greece, PAME was, is and will be on your side.

Solidarity with the struggle of France workers!

Until victory!
